BIGELOW SPOKE HERE IN 1916

Pacifist, Mobbed In Kentucky, Appeared On Chautauqua Program

Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati, the pacifist, who was recently whipped by a mob near Florence Kentucky, is not unknown to the people of Rhinelander, having appeared here on the Chautauqua program in the summer of 1916. Mr. Bigelow was taken into the woods near Florence, Kentucky, and tied to a tree and given twelve lashes with a whip, the deed having been committed by a mob who abducted the man as he was about to enter a hall at Newport, Kentucky. Mr. Bigelow is at the head of the People's church in Cincinnati, and first visited this part of the country as a single taxer. He later went into the socialist ranks and has made quite a reputation down in his country as a pacifist. Mr. Bigelow is a fine talker and has a pleasing personality, and those who heard him here were enthusiastic in their praise of his ability on the platform.

H. S. BASKET BALL

Preparations are underway at the high school for the coming basketball season. A team has already been organized and practice games are now in order. As soon as the team is in fit condition a game will be arranged, probably with one of the neighboring high schools. It is likely, however, that there will be little activity until after the Christmas vacation.

AWARD PRIZES

In the flag pole poem contest conducted by Gary & Danielson the judges found the awarding of prizes a difficult task but finally decided that Owen Charrey, of Milwaukee, should receive first prize and the Trumble Twins, of this city, second prize. The poems submitted by the successful contestants are to be found in Gary & Danielson's ad on another page.

COUNTY BOARD MEETS TUESDAY

The Oneida county board of supervisors will convene at the court house in the city next Tuesday. This is the annual meeting of the board and considerable business of importance will be transacted.

1000 LICENSES

County Clerk J. J. Verage says that up to date he has issued about 1000 hunting licenses. He considers this a good sale considering the fact that many who usually take out licenses have gone to the colors. He looks for the last few days before the beginning of the deer season to be rushing in the license department. Last year Mr. Verage issued about 1800 hunting licenses.

INSTRUCT CLERKS

A course of instruction in salesmanship for the clerks employed in the stores of this city will be given by Secretary E. O. Barstow of the Advancement association. November 13 is the date of the first class. The course will be held in the city hall.

CITY WOOD YARD FOR EAGLE RIVER

Eagle River is to have a municipal wood yard. The Vilas County News tells of the plan as follows: Plans are now under way, it is understood, by the town officials of Eagle River to put in operation a method of buying and selling wood in this village under municipal management, and, if put in force will open up a ready cash market to the farmer and settler, and also lessen to some extent the wood shortage now confronting us. The plan is to purchase green and dry wood in pole or log length, paying by weight, the municipality sawing it in 16-inch length and sell to consumers by weight at cost. If this method is feasible, and it appears to be, the settler will be enabled to cut his own pole wood and escape the delays occasioned by his inability to procure labor in order to saw his wood in cord length. The plan will certainly bear an early working out.

FLORA DE VOSS AT MAJESTIC

Next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings will mark the first engagement of a popular priced company, at the Majestic. Mr. Rotnour, well known in Rhinelander, and for years one of the most successful popular priced theatrical managers in the middle west and north, announces his ever popular Flora DeVoss Co. with Miss DeVoss personally appearing. Monday evening will be presented "Help Wanted," a play of the day and one of the very best problem comedies dramas that has ever been written. Tuesday evening will be offered "A Long Long Ways From Home," which Mr. Rotnour, announces as the climax of western dramas, and unlike most western pieces this play is with out a shot. Abundance of comedy running through the bill is one of the principal features. Wednesday evening will close their engagement with the greatest of all "Going Straight." This play Mr. Rotnour has just succeeded in securing for his company. Between acts there will be high class vaudeville by Hart and Hart, Miss Helen Keyes, David R. Curtis and Bert Bolo, the Hawaiian. A special musical program will be given by the theater orchestra.

MOVE TO COUNTY

Walter R. Benedict of Chicago, who is the head of a large colonization company, with main office at Chicago, recently purchased several large land tracts in Oneida county from C. Eby, which his company expects to colonize in the spring.

In speaking of Mr. Eby Mr. Benedict said that Mr. Eby is one of Oneida county's live wires in the land business, who represents things and conditions as they are and any one buying lands from Mr. Eby gets more than a quare deal.

HURT BY AUTO

Mel Sweet, one of Rhinelander's well known residents, was the victim of what might have been a serious accident Sunday. He was working on his automobile in front of the Oneida Garage on Rives street when another car, backing out of the garage, bumped into him. Had the car been moving faster, Mr. Sweet might have been fatally hurt. Although his injuries caused him much discomfort no bad results are anticipated.

HOW TO PRONOUNCE WACO Some say "Waco" and others say "Wayco" but every one in Waco says "Wayco," which is correct.

FOURTH ANNUAL POTATO SHOW.

(By W. D. Juday) Next Wednesday, Nov. 14th the Fourth Annual County Potato Show will be held in the Armory at Rhinelander. This year's show promises to be the best of all from the standpoint of interest and our exhibit is going to be much better than we had thought at first. The attendance of farmers is going to be large and every indication points to the probability of this being the best County Potato Show we have had. Mr. E. L. Luther of Madison and Mr. E. J. Delwiche of Ashland are to be the judges of the exhibits. Both these men are well acquainted with Northern Wisconsin conditions and besides judging our potatoes they are going to give talks on a program which will begin about 3:30 P. M.

The exhibits should be at the Armory by 10:00 A. M. Nov. 14th as the judging will start at 11:00. Exhibit boxes will be furnished to all exhibitors. Premium lists will be available at the show. From the exhibits at this County Show exhibit stock will be collected for the Oneida County Booth at the State Potato Show which will be held at Madison, the week following.

Every person interested in the welfare of Oneida County should attend this County Potato Show and see the class of potatoes which has brought Oneida County into the limelight as a center for the production of high quality seed and table stock. Wisconsin will soon be the foremost state in the union in this respect and Oneida County has easily lead all Counties of the state. This lead we want to keep. It means dollars to every farmer in the county who grows potatoes. Come to the Potato Show next Wednesday and see how you can help next year.

AMERICANS ALL

It is now nearly three hundred years since a little band of Pilgrims knelt together on our eastern coast and thanked God for leading them to a land of freedom and guarding them through the perils of their first year of pioneer life. Since then, many other men and women from many lands have sought liberty on our shores. They and their children have made our nation what it is. Now—Americans all—we are fighting to keep inviolate those free institutions for which, on this coming Thanksgiving Day, as on the first one, we shall offer, as a nation, our devoutest thanks.

From the moors and the tors of old England,
The wild Irish glens and the bogs,
The banks and the braes of the Highlands,
And Holland, the country of fogs;
From the Rhine and the Seine and the Tiber,
And the Alps, where the yodelers call,
They come o'er the stormy Atlantic—
Americans all!

For here on the rim of the sunset
The land is a melting-pot vast,
And into it goes every stranger,
Regardless of color or caste.
The immigrant boy with his bundle,
The immigrant girl with her shawl,
Emerge from the caldren of nations—
Americans all!

The tools of new labors await them.
Each a wand full of magic to wield
In the charming of gold from the highway,
The shop and the mill and the field.
And Fortune to some of them beckons
From the windows of skyscrapers tall;
Prosperous, happy—behold them—
Americans all!

So when on the horizon rises
A war cloud to threaten the land,
With Liberty's native-born children
Shoulder to shoulder they stand,
For America ready to battle,
For America ready to fall;
Not Russians or Swedes or Italians—
Americans all!

—Minna Irving in Leslie's.

CAFE OBSERVES FIRST BIRTHDAY

The Rhinelander Cafe, Vlahakis Brothers & Company, proprietors, observed its first anniversary Thursday, Nov. 1. When this restaurant was opened one year ago many people shook their heads knowingly and declared that the business would never pay. But, Vlahakis Brothers, by the success which has attended their efforts the past year, have demonstrated that an up-to-date eating house, conducted in a business like way, can be made to show a profit. The Rhinelander Cafe is one of the finest restaurants in northern Wisconsin, both in point of equipment and service. Vlahakis Brothers have made many friends amongst the people of Rhinelander. They came here entire strangers and by their courtesy and square business methods have made a very favorable impression here.

WHAT THE Y. M. C. A. IS DOING

A young fellow from a good home in Wisconsin said to a Y. M. C. A. secretary in France: "The day I left, my mother took me alone into the kitchen and put both her hands on my shoulders, saying, 'Son, let me get your eye. It breaks my heart to see you go. I'm not afraid of bullets or rigid military discipline. I'm proud to have my boy give his life for our country, but I fear most the awful moral conditions. Can you come back, if God permits you to return, as clean as you are now? When you do return, we'll come into this kitchen to stand as we are now. You will not need to tell me if you are clean. I'll see it in your eye. Can you keep clean, my boy? Can you do it for your mother?'"

NORTH WISCONSIN FURNISHES 'SPUDS'

C. W. Crotty, Market Agent of the State Council of Defense, has returned to Madison from a trip from the northern part of the state where he arranged for the shipment of 15,000 bushels of potatoes to Milwaukee, to be distributed to the County Council of Defense. These potatoes will be delivered in Milwaukee at a maximum price of $1.20 per bushel, some of them being purchased so that they will be delivered in Milwaukee at $1.15.

MASK BALL NOV. 20

Hans and Fritz, those old reliable entertainers, will give a masquerade at Gilligan's hall, Tuesday night, November 20. Cardin's orchestra will furnish music. Hans and Fritz say this will be one of the best things they have ever attempted and that's certainly saying a lot. Prizes will be awarded to the best dressed lady, best dressed gent, most comic lady and most comic gent. This will be the season's first masquerade.

FALLS ON AXE

Albert Haggmann, a woodsman employed in a camp near Bundy, was seriously injured when he fell on an axe. The accident occurred Saturday morning and Haggmann was rushed to this city for surgical attention. He is in St. Mary's hospital and it is stated that he will recover.

ANDERSON SELLS CIGAR BUSINESS

R. C. Luedke Will Manage Factory For Oneida Cigar & Tobacco Co.

The Oneida Cigar and Tobacco Co. is the name of the firm who succeeds and takes over the business of Sam L. Anderson, cigar manufacturer at 415 S. Brown St. Mr. R. C. Luedke, who is well known in this territory will be the manager of the new firm. Mr. Luedke has had a large experience in this line, having conducted a large cigar manufactory in Grand Rapids several years ago.

In an interview with a New North representative Mr. Luedke states that he sees no reason why a city like Rhinelander and the surrounding towns, should not support at least from 12 to 15 cigar makers and 4 to 5 apprentices, so that an establishment of this kind could employ at least 20 hands. As a rule, cigar makers are invariably good citizens and command good salaries which are always left in the city in which they reside.

The Court House, Sam's Perfectos, Don Cassio, and El Finero brands will be continued and the quality kept up and if possible will be made better than ever. Several new high grade brands will be added.

In addition to manufacturing and wholesaling cigars, the new firm will job and wholesale tobaccos, cigarettes and a general line of smoker's supplies.

Mr. Luedke states that if the smokers will insist on getting a home made cigar and the dealers feature them, that at least $20,000.00 in payroll will stay at home and be circulated among the business men of the city.

Mr. Anderson will be employed by the new firm in the capacity of shop overseer and foreman and it is assured that under his able judgment, only the highest quality stock and workmanship will go into the products of the new firm.

HEAVY EXPRESS BUSINESS HERE

"Express business is better today than it has ever been before," said Gust Bronson Jr., local agent for the American and Western Express companies. The daily shipments handled through the Rhinelander office are the heaviest since the office was established. Our two wagons are busy every minute and if this pace keeps up it will be necessary to increase the office force.

"We anticipate a record smashing holiday business and will make preparations toward that end," continued Mr. Bronson. "It is our ambition to give the public unusually good service during the Christmas rush and we are going to do it too, if we have to work twenty-four hours a day."

KEEPS STAMPS IN VAULT

Postmaster Matt Stapleton informs the New North that he has leased a safe in the Merchants State bank safety vault, where the large stock of stamps and other valuable papers of the local postoffice, will be kept. The use of the vault eliminates the danger from fire and robbery.

PARTY AT MALVERN SCHOOL

A Halloween party was given in the Malvern school house Saturday night by the teacher, Miss Eunice Daily. W. D. Juday, county agricultural representative, gave a short address. The attendance was large and the occasion was greatly enjoyed. Refreshments were served.

WACO BOYS GOING INTO TRENCHES

Wisconsin soldiers at Camp MacArthur, Waco, Texas, in a very few weeks, will be writing their letters "from the trenches." And the address they indicate will be perfectly proper.

The boys will, however, be still half a world away from Flanders. They will dig themselves in, as part of the education of war, in Texas fields about three miles northeast of Camp MacArthur. The government has leased the ground for men of the school of infantry to borrow in.

The system of trenches will accommodate about 2,000 men, about the number that would be required to defend such a work in the face of the enemy.

The men will go into the trenches for two weeks and during this time they will eat, sleep and work ten feet below the surface of the ground.

The trenches will be patterned after those which are drawn across France. They will be complete even to the listening posts, the bomb proofs and lines of communication. Texas rains, just about due, will make such a slush of Texas gambol as Gen. Petain's forces have never charged through, and if the boys are fortunate, the last touch of realism—trench rats—may be added.

The boys at Camp MacArthur have proved their patriotism by rolling up an estimated subscription to the Liberty Loan of $1,500,000.

Packey McFarland, former light weight champion of the world, has arrived there to begin his "bit" as coach of the boxing instructors who drill the boys in the manly art.

Mrs. O. C. Schultz, 101 Thayer St., Rhineland, says: "My back ached so badly that I could work only for a little while in the morning and I could just barely drag myself around. I had dull pains over my kidneys, extending into my hips and limbs and these pains seemed to take every bit of energy and strength. My kidneys didn't act right and I had inflammation of the bladder. I was feeling poorly in every way when I got Doan's Kidney Pills. They relieved me quickly and after I used one box I could do my housework and get around without difficulty."

WRITES OF LIFE OVER IN FRANCE

Joseph La Flamboy Gets Interesting Letter From Private Sensesbrenner

Joseph La Flamboy of 331 Dahl street has received the following letter from his friend, E. B. Sensesbrenner, who is railroading "somewhere in France."

Somewhere in France.

Dear Friend Joe—

On account of strict censorship I am not allowed to go into details and tell you as much as I'd like to. Also, stationery is very scarce and I cannot write to you as many as I'd like to either. We have not had a pay day for a month, and every mother's son of us is broke flat, so we can't buy any more stationery. This is some that I brought from the states. Maybe the next letter you get from me will have to be written on the back of your letter which I received this morning. It sure was welcome too as mail is half of the Sammies' existence over here.

We were just a month in making our trip and were on the ocean for twenty-two days. Altho we did not see a submarine we were chased by one one night and part of our regiment on another ship had two torpedoes fired at them and had a 45 minute fight with a "Sub." We had two days of real rough weather at sea and altho a bunch of the boys got sea sick, I was lucky and got by with out being sick. We landed and were three days in England, where we marched through the streets of London; marched up Piccadilly, Pall Mall, The Strand, Dury Lane, past the Royal Guard at Trafalgar Square to Buckingham Palace and passed King George and Queen Alexandra. I was within twenty feet of them. The streets were lined with thousands of cheering people who gave us a most royal welcome. I was sure proud to be wearing a U. S. uniform that day as we enjoyed the distinction of being the first American troops to ever parade the streets of London behind Old Glory.

We found France to be a very beautiful country and the French people are polite, courteous and very good to us. Practically none of them speak any English but we are gradually picking up their language and they are learning ours. We did not stop in Paris but saw it and the Eiffel Tower and will soon get a short furlough to go and visit Gay Paree. I dare not tell you the name of the city we are quartered in but it is a most interesting place and I'll be only too glad to tell you all about it later. We are not far from the front and can hear the roar of heavy artillery in the trenches at times. We've seen numerous air fights by aeroplanes, above us and an aeroplane flying over us has ceased to be a novelty. We are not as near the trenches as we will be eventually, as we are to operate the railroads, right up to the field base of the firing line. I don't think much of their railroad equipment here, as it's not near as up-to-date as ours. The divisions are very short, ours is to be 60 miles, and the cars are non-air and 6 ton capacity. The couplings are similar to our old link and pin, and they do not make any "hump, dad, dies" at all. The yards are hump yards and the car is cut off before it's kicked. The cars have a very efficient hand brake which is operated on the side by lever. No grad. iron ladders, nor running board on the tops. In fact men are not allowed on top of the cars. There seems to be more "gons" or what you'd call gons, than there are "good" cars, or cars, and they are all about the same length, 20 feet. The passenger cars are about thirty feet long; passenger trains make fast time too. The caboose is hauled next to the engine and the brakemen ride in small cupolas at intervals back along the train. Looks as tho' it's going to be a cold job braking this winter. I am the second oldest brakeman in my company though I expect to be promoted when we get right down to work. The engines are very small and on the high wheelers the cylinders are on the inside between the rails and there are no cow-catchers on them. The road bed is excellent, though with swell ballast even nicer than our transcontinental roads. We have all made a few "student trips" but are waiting for something, which I can't tell you what, before we actually go to work. Must cease now, Joe, for lack of paper. We are well fed and well housed, but almost suffer for the want of American tobacco. The French tobacco is vile and strong and we simply can't get used to it. Some of the boys are smoking dry leaves in their pipes in preference. I am getting to be some snipe shooter and butts beggar. If a man would pull out a package or even one Camel cigarette, it would be murder on the spot as every man in the company would try to get to him. We all made a mistake in not bringing lots of it along with us. The American Y. M. C. A. here had two tons of "Bull", P. A. Tuxedo, and cigarettes sunk about a mile off the coast of France. I sent home for bales of it tho, about a week ago and it ought to be here soon, if the "Sabs" don't get to it. It takes mail a long time to get here alright. We got mail, today, first in five days, dated July 26 to 31. I have seen many German, or "Boche" prisoners in this country and from the looks of them, we don't look for the war to last very much longer. We all want to be home by Thanksgiving, 1918. Write me often Joe, as mail is half of our existence over here. Greet all the boys especially Bill Dunn, Kohn, Bertels, Billie Base and "Red" for me. Wish I could see you all (and my "Babe") for about five minutes. Hope you are well and happy. I'm Lee and dandy.

Yours in Khaki,
ED. SENSENBRENNER.

EAGLE RIVER

(Eagle River Review)

According to information given the Review this morning by District Attorney O'Connor, Vilas county's total subscription to the Liberty Loan will be over $10,000 as it is learned that employees of the Indian Reservation at Lac du Flambeau, invested in bonds to the amount of $2,350, and the village of Winchester, subscribed several hundred dollars through the banks of Rhineland. One individual there took $500.

A fire broke out in the third and fourth grade room of the Gov't School building in Lac du Flambeau last Wednesday night. Fortunately the fire was noticed in time so only the one room was damaged by the fire. The loss is reckoned to be about $300 and the cost of redecoration of the hall. The decorator had just finished work and the building had been put in order. The fire was caused by the school stove being too near a table of books.

Joe, Hrabich, Creation representative for the Sanborn Co., met with a serious accident Sunday morning, that has him confined to his room at Win. Murthy's. He was starting a fire at the office that morning and by mistake used gasolene for the purpose, instead of kerosene. The explosion that followed severely burned him on the hands and legs, though he is said to be doing well now, barring the painful nature of the mishap.

Just as we go to press, we learn that Geo. Hall fell from the roof of his new house, a distance of eighteen feet. His back, being hurt, one wrist and ankle broken besides internal injuries. His many friends hope for a favorable recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Al. Well will soon move to Rhineland for the winter, where Al. is manager for the Miller firm of potato dealers of Chicago. Their residence here will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ulrich during their absence.

AN OLD MAN'S STOMACH

As we grow older and less active, less and less food is required to meet the demands of our bodies. If too much is habitually taken, the stomach will rebel. When a man reaches the advanced age of 85 or 90, you will find that he is a light eater. Be as careful as you will, however, you will occasionally eat more than you should and will feel the need of Chamberlain's Tablets to correct the disorder. These tablets do not contain poison, but strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its function. Answer has not been found, gentle movement of the bowels. All Dealers.

HOW FREEDOM IN U. S. BEGAN WAR

Judge A. H. Reid Shows Need Of Fighting In Tomahawk Speech

"What we saw through a glass darkly, we now see face to face, in the clear light of day; and above all we comprehend how utterly impossible it was for us to remain merely a spectator on the outer rim of the world's great tragedy," Judge A. H. Reid of Wausau told a large gathering at a patriotic meeting in Tomahawk Sunday afternoon. People came from all that region to hear the speeches and join in the organization of a Loyalty Legion branch.

"I am by nature and belief a pacifist," the judge told his audience, and added that most wars have been waged for booty or conquest and but few have arisen from differences that could not have been settled peacefully. "But notwithstanding all this, it seems now perfectly clear that America's place is in the war now raging, that to stay out would have been our greatest folly, and possibly suicide, and that the opportunity now presents itself, by prosecuting to the proper conclusion the struggle now on, to render practically impossible in the future a repetition of any such horrors as now presents itself."

"When it was first proposed to increase our army and put ourselves on a strong defensive basis, there seemed to me greater danger of fastening on ourselves an unnecessary and dangerous military system than there was danger of invasion of our rights. It now seems exceedingly strange that I could not then see that this struggle was from the very first a death grapple between autocratic rulers who claimed that they had a God-given right to make subject, to dominate and even rule crush out at will the people of weaker nations, and the movement toward human liberty which would give to every people the right to govern themselves and to develop in their own way, in peace their own ideals and destinies."

"With a great deal of truth it may be said that this was our war from the beginning. We started it; because we started the movement toward liberty, which is now grappling with the forces of despotism in the vastest struggle ever known. Until the United States came into existence, the world had never known, except in the case of a few experiments which had failed, a truly free and representative government. The success of our experiment here was a challenge to the autocracies of the world."

The speaker pointed out how the French revolution had followed ours, and how the British empire had suffered a revolution of free government from end to end after the American colonies had broken away. He then outlined the story of the "Holy Alliance" of monarchs to prevent the spread of unmonarchical government. At Verona their treaty declared that "useful and necessary changes in legislation and in the administration of state can emanate only from the free will and well weighed convictions of those whom God has made responsible for power." (Kings, they meant.)

"It was an accused conspiracy against the rights and liberties of mankind," the speaker continued, "and what remains of that compact has dominated the dominions of the central powers of Europe ever since."

"Frankly at the outset of the war they not only confessed their purpose, but advocated the desirability of extending what they termed their Kultur, which means simply their system of government and political and economic organization, as far as possible, even by the use of the sword. They are making the last great effort of autocratic government to maintain itself against the movement for liberty, autonomy and self-government for every people."

The speaker then sketched Prussia's rise to domination, concluding that the way in which Prussia rose "not only prepared the way for what she is now attempting, but has made the present project of the central allies a perfectly natural and logical result."

He quoted from O. R. Tannenbergs "Gross Deutschland": "The period of preparation has lasted a long time—forty years of toil on land and sea, the end constantly in view. The need now is to begin the battle, to vanquish and to conquer; to gain new territories—lands for colonization for the German peasants, fathers of future warriors, and for the future conquests. Peace between Germans and Slave is like a treaty made on paper between water and fire. Since we have the force we have not to seek reasons."

Royal Baking Powder saves eggs in baking

In many recipes only half as many eggs are required, in some none at all, if an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder is used, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted.

Try the following recipes which also conserve white flour as urged by the government.

Corn Meal Griddle Cakes

1 1/2 cups corn meal
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon shortening
1 tablespoon molasses
1/2 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
NO EGGS

Scald corn meal in bowl with boiling water; add milk, molasses, shortening and salt; mix well. Bake on hot greased griddle until brown. (The Old Method called for 2 eggs)

Eggless, Milkless, Butterless Cake

1 cup brown sugar
1 1/2 cups water
1 cup seeded raisins
2 ounces citron, cut fine
1/2 cup shortening
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup flour
1 cup raisins
1 cup nuts

Boil sugar, water, fruit, shortening, salt and spices together in saucepan 2 minutes. When cool, add flour and baking powder which have been sifted together. Mix well; bake in loaf pan in moderate oven about 45 minutes. (The Old Method [Fruit Cake] called for 2 eggs)

3 CENTS POSTAGE RULE IN FORCE

Public Slow To Grasp The Change In Postal Rates

The Rhineland postoffice has gone through the revolutionary change of substitution of three for two cent letter postage and two in place of one cent postal cards. It is encountering all the work which might have been expected because of the failure of the entire public to grasp the change at once and because of a fine point in regard to rates on cards.

A letter found in the box with only two cents postage on it is either returned to the sender, if his address appears on the envelope, or if that is missing, is forwarded to the addressee with "one cent due" stamped upon it. The person to whom the letter is sent then pays the extra cent before he gets the letter. If the letter does not contain at least two cents the addressee is notified to send stamps to the postmaster to make up the deficiency. This makes it expensive for him to be required to send back the needed stamps in an envelope bearing three cents postage.

Letters sent to persons within the territory of the same postoffice, including those on rural routes, may still be sent at the two cent rate.

All postal cards must carry two cents in postage. The buyer may procure a one cent card and add another one cent stamp. It should be kept in mind that all postal cards must carry two cents postage, whether mailed to an addressee in town or not and whether they contain printed or written messages. At the same time it should not be forgotten that a "postal card" is one sold by the government. The "post cards" and "private mailings cards" bought in the stores or used by business firms are not "postal cards" but they come under the same rule in regard to postage. They must have two cents in stamps on them.

This is one exception. Cards not within the regular size, that is, under 2 3/4 by 4 inches, or over 3 9/16 by 5 9/16 inches, and which do not contain the words "post card" or "private mailing card" and which contain only printed matter, may still be mailed for one cent. They will not be forwarded, however, beyond the office to which they are sent. If not delivered there, a call is made to make up the deficient postage.

Lodges in Rhineland, which make a practice of notifying members by postal card of meetings to be held may get within the one cent rate by having their cards printed and attaching the stamps themselves and by having the announcements printed on the cards. The addresses may still be written by hand or by typewriter.

"For the cause that lacks assistance;
For the wrong that needs resistance;
For the future in the distance
And the good that we can do."

Woman's suffrage was carried in the state of New York last Tuesday by a large majority. This means about two million votes more cast at general election. Ohio was lost for the same cause.

We would like to see a municipal skating rink, or if the city does not feel able to fully back the proposition, we would like to see them assist. We understand memberships are now being subscribed, and for the good of the city, we would like to see the proposition put through.

IS THIS PATRIOTISM?
A gigantic conspiracy to spoil food by the carload, to dump it, to waste it, to keep it out of the Chicago market that prices might not come down, is being investigated by federal authorities. The Chicago police under the direction of First Deputy Wesley Westbrook and State's Attorney Hoyne, and as evidence of this alleged conspiracy, the police say, decomposition of food is being hastened by chemicals and oil.

BAD ENOUGH
Appleton is going back to the old form of government by a mayor and common council. The people seem to have had all they want of the commission form, for they so decided in the special election held Tuesday by the unmistakable majority of 556. The total vote was 1491 'For' and 2050 'Against'. The present regime will hold forth until next April when an entire new set of officers, consisting of mayor and two aldermen from each ward, will be chosen by the electors. Autocratic city government is no more acceptable than autocratic national government, and according to all reports the former is what the Appleton people seem to have been getting. They are going back to a democracy, for democratic form of government is the very thing Uncle Sam and his people are all fighting for today in this great world's war. The probabilities are that Oshkosh will be the next to try her luck at disposing of commission form of management.

Many in Antigo are expressing their honest opinion after a trial, the old form of government was more satisfactory and are anxious when the time comes to change back again.—Antigo News Item.

The voters of the city of Appleton have spoken in most decisive language. After that city trying out the commission form of government the past few years, by a majority of nearly six hundred the voters of Appleton have decided to return to the old mayor and common council system. While the mayor and council system of government is by no means perfect, we believe it far better than the autocratic, secret, commission government. Under the present system of governing cities where laws are made in the open, it is a difficult thing to bribe the city administration. But with the commission form where laws may be made in secret with only three men, bribery and dishonesty may become common. Appleton has been quoted much for her splendid commission government, but the decisive victory for the old form of government where the commission form has been tried out for several years ought to show the idea of the masses to other cities.

WISCONSIN DID NOBLY
According to incomplete reports from Chairman Ross and Hixon, Wisconsin has subscribed $85,000, $90 toward her maximum quota of $95,000 for the second Liberty Loan. This is more than 50 per cent above the minimum quota for the state, based on an issue of $3,000,000.

As the seventh Federal Reserve District ten counties oversubscribed their maximum quotas: Dane, Green Lake, Kenosha, Milwaukee, Outagamie, Racine, Rock, Sheboygan, Waushara, and Winnebago. Chairman Ross gives to Kenosha county premier honors in the state, and probably in the nation, for oversubscribing its maximum quota by 239 percent.

At least twelve counties in the ninth Federal Reserve District oversubscribed their minimum quotas: Ashland, Bayfield, Chippewa, Douglas, Eau Claire, Florence, Iron, La Crosse, Lincoln, Oneida, St. Croix, and Vilas.

The outstanding fact regarding the second Liberty Loan in Wisconsin is that the cities and industrial centers did more than their share, and the rural districts fell behind. W. L. Ross estimates that not more than 20 percent of the farmers purchased bonds. If they had done as well in proportion to their number and ability as the city population, Wisconsin's maximum quota would have been far oversubscribed. As it is, a bond will be placed in practically every second family in the state.

Both Federal Reserve Chairmen for Wisconsin praise very highly the work of the County Councils and the 20,000 other volunteers with whom untiring efforts the campaign would have been much less successful.

City will receive a plurality of close to 140,000 over the present incumbent, Mayor John Purroy Mitchell, who ran on the fusion ticket. Morris Hillquit, Socialist candidate, is running closely behind Mitchell, with William M. Bennett, the Republican candidate, a bad fourth.

The campaign was one of the bitterest ever waged in a municipal election in Greater New York. Judge Hyman was the target of most of the abuse. Not only was he the target for the vilification hurled by the other candidates, but the entire local press, with the exception of William Randolph Hearst's publications, were lined up against him. The issue of the great war was brought into the struggle. The Democratic candidate was assured by Mayor Mitchell for his alleged pro-German attitude. But Judge Hyman answered all his critics with the simple statement:

"I challenge anyone to prove he is a better American than I am." And today the voters answered his criticism. The election of the Democratic candidate was assured as soon as the first few scattered returns were received. And with every additional tabulation he increased his plurality over his opponents, carrying everyone of the five boroughs in the greater city—Manhattan, Kings, Richmond, Queens, and the Bronx.

And in the whole city there is no woman provider than Mrs. John F. Hyman. With her daughter, Virginia, she received the returns at the Hyman home in Brooklyn. She was elated when the news came that her husband would be the next mayor of New York.

"I am proud to be the wife of the next mayor," she said, "because I know his sympathies are with the people and against the big interests which exploit the people. They have repudiated practically the whole press of the city, and Wall street interests by his election. In appreciation of this I am sure he will vindicate their judgment by continuing with the people in opposition to those who mislead and exploit them."

RHINELANDER TO HAVE FLOUR MILL
Patrons Milling Company To Erect 25 Barrel Capacity Plant

(Contributed)
About two years ago the Grange of this county organized the Wisconsin Grange Co-operative Clearing House with idea of building a potato warehouse, flour mill, co-operative store, etc, but either they were unable to secure the confidence of the farmers or the affair was not presented rightly for they did not seem able to secure the necessary subscription of stock.

A few weeks ago a few of the leading farmers of the county quietly organized the Patron's Milling Co., and in a short time $6,000 was secured among farmers only, and Tuesday evening Nov. 6, a meeting of its stockholders was held and the following board of directors was elected:

Wm. Gilley, Pelican
John Dahlstrand, Newbold
Steve Novak, Sugar Camp
Henry Kress, Crescent
John O. Bernstein, Pine Lake

Within a week the board will meet and elect officers, select a site, decide on the kind of power to be used, etc.

It is planned to ask the city to subscribe from $500 to $2,000 in stock for although $6,000 will build a wheat mill, it is intended to put in two other mills, one for rye and buckwheat and one for corn meal and feed; and working capital will be needed which makes it necessary to sell the entire $10,000 capital stock. The farmers feel that if the city can donate to private enterprises that benefit only a hundred or so men that they should subscribe stock in an enterprise that is really a public benefit to the 600 farmers of this county and bring in a 1000 farmers from nearby counties.

The farmers would expect to buy back this stock as soon as more farmers could be interested or present subscribers could afford to take more themselves.

NIGHT SCHOOL
The evening school classes at the high school will be started in the near future. A meeting of those interested will be called some evening next week.

The director of the school will be glad if any persons interested will notify the high school office and tell what studies they wish to take.

YES, THEY ARE UP
At last the city hall flag pole has been raised, also the Curran school flag pole. These poles, which have been the subject of many jokes and discussions the past several months, were elevated quickly and without ceremony.

Patrick Johnston, of the city hall force, has already hoisted the stars and stripes to the top of the hall pole, hats off to Patrick!

Council Passes Resolution Submitted By Alderman Dan Noble

A regular council meeting was held Tuesday evening, all members being present except Alderman Peacor. The usual batch of bills was allowed.

The Rhinelander News Bill brought forth some discussion, and it was moved and carried that hereafter both newspapers shall attach an affidavit to the effect that the work was done.

The Superior Calking Co. of Milwaukee presented a proposition to the council for calking all windows and doors of the city hall. This was referred to the committee on city affairs to act as they see fit.

A resolution was offered by Alderman Noble to the effect that the estimated receipt of the city be raised from twenty-three thousand to forty-three thousand dollars, in order to decrease the taxes for all the taxpayers of the city, which was passed unanimously.

Mayor Clark, after having a conference with the head Sister Superior from Marshfield, brought up the matter of having the Isolation Hospital put in such shape with reference to bed, bed clothing, etc, same to cost in the neighborhood of three hundred dollars. It was duly moved and carried that this be left with the committee on city buildings to act as they see fit in this matter.

Rubber Producing Plants.

Of all rubber producing plants, only guayule grows wild within our borders. In the Big Bend territory in Texas a large district, only second in size to the Chihuahuan field in Mexico, is available. Why not extend this field over the arid lands of New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada? Waste land would be utilized, and a valuable product secured. Guayule is not new to the American rubber man, unfortunately it is almost ancient history to him. It is safe to say that there are scattered over this country at least fifty deresinating plants, intended primarily for the treatment of this rubber. At one time they furnished about one-fifth of the entire rubber used in this country. The total production of the Mexican guayule fields was about 10,000 tons of the washed and dried, but not deresinated, rubber a year, from 1905 to 1910. In 1911 it began to fall off, and the recorded production for 1912 is 3,500 tons. About 80 per cent of this production was exported to the United States. Since 1912 guayule has been comparatively unimportant.—Metallurgical and Chemical Engineering.

Floating Islands.

Many floating islands have at various periods been found voyaging on the Atlantic. These islands were originally part of the lowlying river banks, which broke away under stress of storm or flood and floated out to sea. The Orinoco, the Amazon, La Plata and other tropical rivers often send forth such pieces of their shores. Some of the bits of land are of large size and carry animals, insects and vegetation, at times including trees, the roots of which serve to hold the land intact, while their branches and leaves serve as sails for the wind. Generally the waves break up these islands shortly after they put to sea, but sometimes, under favorable conditions, they travel long distances.

Lighting the Oven.

A baker's oven, illuminated on the inside, is a great advantage, since otherwise the contents cannot be closely inspected, unless withdrawn from the oven. An arrangement suitable for electric or gas lighting has been devised. The door is hinged to the frame by means of pins. One pin is provided with a counterweight to facilitate the action of the door in opening and closing. The other pin has a crank arm. On an extension on the door is mounted a knife switch, with two short fingers to engage with the crank arm. The opening of the door establishes an electrical connection with a lamp mounted in a casing near the door. If gas is used, the crank arm engages with the shank of a valve which regulates the flow of gas to the burner in the casing.—Popular Science Monthly.

Concerning Hay Fever.

There is no such thing as a rose cold. That affliction of early summer comes from various grasses, such as Johnson grass, nut grass, Bermuda grass, and oats, and some trees, particularly red cedar and black walnut. These grasses and trees are pollinated only by insects, and it is the role in hay fever science that the disease is usually caused by the pollen that goes by breeze rather than by bees.

Lesson in History.

The young lady across the way says women have done their part in every great war in history, and she doubts if Napoleon would ever have won the battle of Waterloo if it hadn't been for Joan of Arc.—Cartoons Magazine.

MANY GOING TO WIS. POTATO SHOW

Oneida County Will Have Large Delegation At Madison Convention

There is every indication that there will be a large attendance of Oneida county potato growers at the sixth annual Wisconsin potato show in Madison, November 19-21. W. D. Juday, county agricultural representative, is now arranging for Oneida county's display, which will consist largely of exhibits from the Oneida county potato show, November 14.

The Wisconsin Potato Growers Association requests the public in so far as possible to attend the afternoon and evening sessions. At these sessions subjects of unusual national and economic importance will be discussed. The Association has spared no effort to secure speakers of recognized reputation on marketing, shipping, transportation, distribution and food administration.

Potato growing and Wisconsin development problems will be discussed during forenoon sessions. County booth exhibits and all commercial exhibits will be closed from 10:00 o'clock to 12:00 o'clock each forenoon to avoid interruption of the program.

For the first time the Association has been able to arrange a complete exhibit of potato machinery equipment and supplies. This has involved an unusual amount of work and co-operation on the part of manufacturers and dealers in co-operation with this Association. Special attention is called to the sorting and grading demonstrations arranged through the co-operation of dealers, manufacturers and Association interests. Sorting and grading demonstrations in accordance with grades published in Document No. 7 of the United States Department of Agriculture will be in progress during the convention week. All sessions of the convention will be held in the University Live Stock Pavilion. Conferences of special interests will be arranged and announced from the platform.

The judging and scoring contests for boys and girls will be held in the Horticultural Building on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday forenoon from 10:00 o'clock to 12:00 o'clock. Potato cooking demonstrations and contests for girls will be held in the balcony of the Live Stock Pavilion.

TO AUTO DEALERS

The State Defense Council sends the following appeal to automobile dealers:

When you order automobiles shipped by carload lots, include an order for parts and accessories to come with the same shipment. These can be shipped at the same time with the automobiles at less than carload rates.

In every car loaded with automobiles, there is considerable unused space. Freight traffic is now heavily congested. The number of cars is limited, hence every car should be loaded to capacity. You can aid greatly by asking that parts and accessories be loaded in the same car with automobiles, rather than sent as separate shipments.

For your own benefit, and that of all other shippers keep these points in mind:

Load cars quickly.
Load them to capacity.
Unload them promptly.
Help win the war.

BIG DRIVE ON NEXT WEEK FOR ARMY Y. M. C. A. FUND

November 11th to 18th inclusive. The National Y. M. C. A. war fund campaign is in progress throughout the country and Oneida county has as its quota, made up in this district which comprises Marathon, Lincoln, Oneida, Vilas, Clark, Price and Taylor. Oneida county's quota is $7,500 and the amount to be raised in this district is $60,500 while that of the state will be $750,000.

There was held in New York City, on September 21st, a national conference to consider the work of the Young Men's Christian Association, in the army and navy camps of the United States and her allies. At the conference a budget committee was appointed, consisting of the following gentlemen: Cyrus H. McCormick, chairman; George W. Perkins, Arthur Curtis James, Coleman Duffont, F. W. Ayer, William Cooper Proctor, Geo. Warren Brown, Samuel Mather, George Wharton Pepper, Harold I. Pratt, W. Averill Harriman, H. M. Leland, John Sherman Hoyt, J. L. Severance, W. M. Pingsley, A. C. Bedford, J. N. Jarvie, William Sloane, Cleveland H. Dodge, and John R. Mott.

Want $35,000,000
This budget committee, after a careful study of the budgets, recommended that $35,000,000 be authorized as the total of the budget needs, as estimated for the period ending with June 30th, 1918. This report was unanimously and enthusiastically adopted by this conference of 250 men representing practically every state in the country. The estimates were as follows: For work with United States, enlisted men in this country, $11,120,000.

For work with United States enlisted men over seas, $11,994,000.
For Y. M. C. A. work in the Russian army, $3,305,000.
For Y. M. C. A. work in the French army, $2,619,000.
For Y. M. C. A. work in the Italian army, $1,000,000.
For Y. M. C. A. work in the prisoner of war camps, $1,000,000.
Total, $31,038,000.
In addition to the above budgets to provide for inevitable expansion $3,932,000.
Grand total, $35,000,000.

Unexpected Conditions
This large increase over the estimate made early in April, is due to conditions beyond the control of the national war work council. The unexpected military activities of the government at home and abroad together with the abnormal unlooked for increase in the cost of building and maintenance makes the actual expense for 1917 probably four times in advance of the April estimates.

Millions will be spent in France for work with United States troops where less than $300,000 was estimated in April as the probable expenditure abroad this year. With coal at $60 a ton it will cost $750,000 to heat the American Y. M. C. A. in France this winter.

In this country $500 army buildings costing from $5,000 to $8,000 each will be erected as compared with the April estimate of 300 buildings at $3,000 each. 2,500 army secretaries will be in the field by the end of the year instead of 1,000 as estimated in April.

Marvelous Opportunity
In addition to rendering full service to the enlisted men enrolled in the army and navy of the United States the American association has presented to it a marvelous opportunity to minister to the soldiers of three great allies, the Russian, French and Italian armies. An open door our association constituency will probably insist on entering.

One combined budget provided for by one campaign covering five distinct needs would obviate the necessity of five campaigns and five agencies calling for permanent supervision. The merger fund proposed by the National War Work Council protects the American public from additional appeals and prevents duplication of effort.

Resolutions Adopted
The following resolutions were recommended to the New York conference by the ways and means committee and enthusiastically adopted:

That it is the united judgment of this meeting of the National War Work Council of the Young Men's Christian Associations of the United States that a special campaign should be organized and conducted at the earliest practicable time, for the purpose of securing such sums of money to meet the requirements as may be decided upon by the conference.

That a national campaign committee should be appointed at once by the executive committee of the National War Work Council to have charge of the organization and conduct of the campaign. It is recommended also that there shall be department campaign committee in each military department of the country and that there shall be a similar campaign committee in each state.

Nation-Wide Campaign
That it is the judgment of the conference that there should be a nation wide campaign week.

That the conference commend this whole program on behalf of the enlisted men of the American army and navy and of our allies to the sympathetic and generous consideration of the American people.

Expect Liberal support
We also express the confident hope that large numbers of the leading laymen throughout the country may make their large executive ability and influential connections tributary to the accomplishment of this great patriotic service for our own country and for strengthening the hands of our allies. We bespeak the continuance of the whole-hearted co-operation of the Christian churches in the realization of the great aims of the campaign.

In view of the appeal of the war to many classes of citizens outside of our regular constituency and because of other important reasons, be it resolved, that it is the conviction of the National War Work Council and of this conference that all moneys raised in connection with the coming campaign should be solicited for the war work of the Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. C. P. Crosby is the general chairman of the executive committee of this county and a citizens' committee will be appointed in the near future who will have charge of the work in this city. Chairmen in the different towns of the county will also be appointed and will be announced later.

HART'S

SAYS INDIANS KILL OFF DEER

Marengo Man Charges There Is Wholesale Slaughter All Year Round

Ed. Feeney, farmer, hunter and trapper of Marengo, does not like Wisconsin game laws. He would make them different if he had the making of them. However, he does not believe the legislature or the State Conservation will have any changes made to suit him. Mr. Feeney's boys add considerable to the family revenue with proceeds of their trapping operations. Speaking of the game laws Mr. Feeney said:

"We have a ten day deer shooting season in Wisconsin. Across the state line on both sides of us, in Michigan and Minnesota, they may shoot deer for 20 days. There's no high wire fence on the state line and our Wisconsin bucks and does go over into the other state and get shot, while we here at home may not shoot them. I had to pay as much today for a ten day license as I did last year for a 20 day license. The Indians on the reservation kill off the deer every month in the year. They are allowed to do so under the treaty, which of course can not be changed. They kill them in the deep snow on snow shoes and they kill them in the summer time at their watering places. The deer assemble on the reservation because there is where the best forage is. They are killed off at seasons when they are poor and of no value for food. Wolves and lynx kill a lot of deer but the great enemy of the wild life is the Indian. Since he can not be stopped under the law there ought to be some movement to educate him to conserve, just as we are being taught to conserve all our other resources. A deer that ventures over the Indian reservation line, no difference what season it may be, has a small chance of ever getting off the reservation alive. The man who will devise ways and means stopping the slaughter of game by the Indians will have done more for wild life than any other agency."

3 CENT POSTAGE RATE NOT NEW

Most persons doubtless regard the increased letter mail rates as "some" increase, to use a popular slang phrase. But these persons belong to the younger generation, who have never had experience with any other rate than the two cents per half ounce rate which ended Thursday. The older generation can easily recall the day when the three cent rate prevailed, while many persons still living can look back to the time when they hailed with delight the establishment of a three cent postage as a big reduction over the rates they had been paying.

Three-cent postage was first introduced in 1851, four years after postage stamps first came into general use in the United States. When first introduced the three-cent rate was limited to distances of less than 3,000 miles, and the prepayment of the postage was optional. The three-cent rate prevailed until 1883, when by act of congress the postage on first class mail matter was reduced to two cents per half ounce.

While the increase in the letter mail postage is in reality only a return to the rates which prevailed up to 1883, the increase in the postal card rate to two cents is an entire novelty. Since postal cards were first provided for by act of congress in 1872 they have always sold for one cent.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Peterson, who for over two weeks have been visiting in Mr. Peterson's boyhood home in Michigan, are expected back Saturday.

MINOCQUA

(Minocqua Times)
Minocqua may well feel proud of the part played in the fight for world democracy, as she has furnished more than a full quota of troops; the best exhibit of Red Cross Work in the county, and lastly oversubscribed its share of the second Liberty Loan which ended October 27, 1917. The apportionment for Minocqua was $8090.00, and $12100.00 worth of Liberty Bonds were taken. The slogan of "A Bond in Every Home" was very nearly completed; a rather remarkable feat, one that any community can be proud of.

Beginning Monday, November 5, the stores of Minocqua will close every evening, with the exception of Saturday evenings at 6:00 o'clock. This agreement between the storekeepers will remain in force until May 1, 1918.

The season for netting cisco opened today, Thursday, Nov. 1. Many of our citizens have already obtained gill nets and licenses to operate them. The season will close Nov. 25. It is reported that the fish have already begun to run.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bosacki, Monday, October 29.

Mrs. McLeod, who was a guest at the Sherman home, returned to Ironwood Monday afternoon.

Stomach Cough

The so-called "stomach cough" has been responsible for the premature filling of a great many graves. Competent physicians do not recognize the existence of any such thing. Usually, the cough is due to tuberculosis. The pain in the neighborhood of the stomach, which misleads the tubercular patient, is not the stomach at all but is in the coverings of the lungs which overlay the upper portion of the stomach.

One of the leading consulting physicians of Milwaukee says that in every case of "stomach trouble" accompanied by pain, he is suspicious of consumption even when there is no unusual amount of cough present. If he decides that the condition is not tuberculosis, then he looks next for the possible existence of disease of the gall bladder. When he is satisfied that neither these nor appendicitis is present, he is willing to consider the possibility of a diseased stomach.

His experience has been that the patient's own notion of what is the matter with him is much more apt to be wrong than right. This is offered to the non-medical readers of this column as a tip. Its acceptance or rejection may mean life or death.

Some one has said, "that the physician who treats himself has a fool for a physician and a fool for a patient." The force of that saying lies in the fact that the judgment of even a good physician is untrustworthy when applied to his own case. This consideration is so true that, as a general rule, physicians will not treat the members of their own families. Obviously, if a physician's judgment is poor under such circumstances, what is to be expected of judgment which has never been trained.

The above constitutes no appeal in behalf of doctors. The good ones do not need it, and I am not interested in the poor ones. But it is an appeal to save the lives of many people in Wisconsin who are doomed to die if they do not quit trying to fool themselves. There is an excuse for the ostrich which hides its own head to escape detection even when his entire body is exposed. But human brains were designed to run better than that.

PARTRIDGE INCREASE

Whir! Whir! Whir! Thus flew up the partridges along a grassy country road one day during the fore part of the week as a party of hunters, with "ye editor" among them, passed. Covering not more than six miles of territory, the party saw nineteen partridges. This is good evidence that the birds have increased wonderfully since last year. But even with the great increase in the number of birds, we must protect them in every way possible to insure our future hunting. We must observe the closed seasons. The "auto-pot-hunter" and the fellow who sneaks into the woods every Sunday will miss the partridges most when they are cleaned out.—Minocqua Times.

JUST FOR A LARK

By C. B. LEWIS.

Miss Geraldine Langton was a daughter of a very rich widow, living in a suburb of New York, and she had arrived at the age of twenty. Here was an intelligent, educated and good looking girl of twenty who had never had a real beau. Yes, she had wondered what kept the young men away. Was it her mother's wealth? Was it that they had heard she was extravagant in her dress, and knew nothing whatever about managing a house? Miss Geraldine thought and thought, but she could not solve the problem. Neither could her mother, though the latter didn't try very hard. Whenever she thought about it, she said to herself:

"Oh, Geraldine is all right. She wants her freedom for a while yet. The right young man will come along some day, and she will have her bridal tour and her happy home. I don't believe she would marry now, anyhow, and, as long as she isn't worried about it there's no occasion for me to fret."

One day Miss Geraldine had to go to the city to do some shopping. She went alone very often and she knew her way about. She never mistook Broadway for Seventh avenue and she never got run over while crossing Herald square at Thirty-fourth street.

The young lady's usual plan on coming to the city was to take a Fourth avenue car at the Grand Central station and ride down to Thirty-third street. There she would leave the car, and walk across Thirty-fourth street to the great retail stores. She shopped an hour or two, and when ready to go home, she carried a little bundle with her. As she was going back to the train she saw a fine-looking man approaching. As he was about to pass her, Geraldine stopped dead still and appealed to him:

"I am in trouble and I wish your assistance."

The man lifted his hat and replied: "I shall be only too happy. What has happened to you?"

"Why—why," carrying her hand to her forehead, "something came over me all at once, and I can't tell you who I am or where I live. My memory seems to have gone all of a sudden!"

"It is a case of amnesia," he said. "I've heard of three or four cases of it this year, but there is nothing to be greatly alarmed about. In fact, I have had a touch of it myself, but was all right in a short while."

"But what shall I do?" she asked.

"Come into this store for a moment. The open street is hardly the place for a talk. Now then, you have evidently been shopping. Can you remember the stores you have just visited?"

"Not a one, though I may have visited half a dozen. I don't think there's anybody in any of the stores who knows me. I have no account with any of them."

"Well, let's see," he mused. "You came in this morning. That is—I suppose you live out of town somewhere?" he went on. "Haven't you got any of your address cards in your purse?"

Miss Geraldine opened her bag, and there was no cardcase.

"Now, try and think of the name of the town you live in," said the gentleman.

"If—if I could think of the name of the town, I could tell you who I am," answered the victim.

"You came in on a train, didn't you?"

"Yes, I think I did, for I seem to remember a big station."

"And then you took the street car down here?"

"I believe I did."

"Well, you probably got off at Thirty-third street and it was only a short walk here. Then you went to the stores. You had finished your shopping and started back for Thirty-third street to go up town. You are going to get off at the Grand Central, probably, and there take a train for your home."

"I—I guess that was the way of it," said Miss Geraldine. "I will go up and see if I remember the station; but everything seems strange to me."

"Of course it does, and I shan't let you go up to the station alone. I will go with you, and we will see if we can't find the right train. Your memory will come back as suddenly as it went."

They walked along together. This was carrying the lark a good deal further than Miss Geraldine had planned for, but she must go through with it now. The best thing for her to do was to recover that lost memory of hers as soon as she could. They had no sooner arrived at the station, than everything came back to her, and she gave a little exclamation of delight. The gentleman was as glad as she was, but he didn't start right back for Thirty-fourth street. He saw her to the station and on to her train, and he lifted his hat in the nicest kind of way, and warmly shook her hand at parting. He was assured over and over again that her memory was all right, and he did just what you might expect a man to do. He took a seat in the car in the rear, and he rode up to Mount Vernon, or some other nice, small city, and followed her at a respectful distance until she entered her mother's home.

And then what? And then Miss Geraldine didn't come to be an old maid. It was a lark, but it proved to be a happy one.

INDIAN PRIEST VISITS CITY

Father Phillip Gordon of Bruce was in Rhinelanders the forepart of the week and was the guest of Father Kalandyk at St. Joseph's parsonage. Father Gordon is one of the two Indian Catholic priests in the United States. He is a resident of Superior, Wis., and completed his education in Washington, D. C. He is a fluent speaker and on one or two occasions has occupied the pulpit in St. Mary's church here.

To Cleanse a Wound.

If a wound is greasy, cleanse with a pledget of the absorbent cotton moistened in benzine, or the antiseptic soapuds. Cover the wound with several thicknesses of Iodoform gauze if you have it—as you should have—in your first-aid kit; pad with a little more absorbent cotton, and bandage in place. Unless necessary to stop bleeding, do not bandage too tightly.

The Effect.

One clubman was telling another of his experience with a book written by still another member. "Do you know," said the first member, "that I picked up his book last night and that I never budged out of my chair until four o'clock this morning?" "Heavens!" exclaimed the second member. "Was it that interesting?" "No, but I didn't wake until that hour."—The Lamb.

Individualism Destroying Family.

Mr. Tokutomi, one of Japan's foremost writers, in discussing the question of the family, laments the fact that the advancing individualism of the nation is undermining the power of the family council, so long the social bulwark of Japan. A strong family system, he says, will relieve the police and law courts of many cases and simplify internal administration, thus leaving the state free to devote its energy to world politics. "It must not be forgotten that the Japanese family system is the heart of the Japanese empire where the spirit patriotism is first cultivated, and that it is essential to make this family system perfect and to support its growth."

Vision Follows Wealth.

Wealth means opportunity. It means travel, music, art, literature, culture, if you will. Even religion must have its golden basis. Wealth builds schools, universities. Chicago spends annually $25,000,000 that our youth may have vision. Big business enterprises transforming the world rest upon accumulation of great wealth. Rob the world of its wealth and it would recede to barbarism.

Curious Jewel Box.

A curious jewel box made of fossil ivory by the natives of Siberia is on exhibition at the Museum of Natural History in New York, says the Christian Herald. The sides and top are composed of flat pieces of ivory and are carefully fitted together, the corners being dovetailed. They have carved in their scenes of the north-land, the front side representing a hunter returning from the chase riding a reindeer. The box is made from the tusks of mammoths that have been buried for ages beneath the ice in Siberia. Some of these tusks weigh from 200 to 300 pounds. Elephants' tusks furnished the ivory for the Jews. Solomon made his throne of it.

PACKAGES TO FRANCE

Christmas packages for American soldiers in France must be mailed not later than November 15, to insure their delivery on Christmas morning. Arrangements have been made for their prompt delivery to the soldiers on Christmas morning.

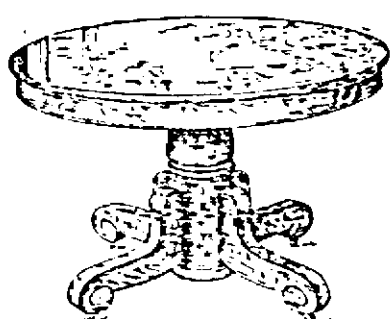

Without the fullest co-operation on the part of the public it will be impossible to make prompt deliveries, however. The three essential respects in which the public can aid in assuring a happy Christmas at the front are in packing early, addressing intelligently and wrapping securely.

Parcel post rate to members of the American expeditionary forces in France is 12 cents per pound from any place within the United States.

Use of Mechanical Milkers.

The time saved by the use of the mechanical milker increases with the increase in the size of the herd. Thus with herds of 15 cows or less the average time required to milk a cow by hand is a fraction over seven minutes; by machine a fraction under five minutes. With herds of more than 50 cows it takes slightly under seven minutes to milk a cow by hand and but 4:15 by machine.

SON OF THE SOIL

By IZOLA FORRESTER.

Paxton had made himself particularly obnoxious that evening. Even Agatha had found him a bore, and usually his little impromptu dissertations amused her. Just when they had all wanted to relax and listen to Gwen's beautiful music he had insisted on talking of subsoils and fertilizers.

"The government is just beginning to realize that its wealth lies in its soil," proclaimed Paxton. "I've got a little old ten-acre lot up in Rhode Island that I haven't even looked at in years. Now I'm shipping up some seed potatoes, and I'll probably follow them in another week."

Just at this point the slender girl in the old dress leaned forward from her chair.

"What kind of seed potatoes, Mr. Paxton?" she asked with sudden interest.

"Don't notice her, Steve," interrupted Charlie.

Charlie was Agatha's husband, used principally as a background for her artistry.

"But I'm in earnest this time," the girl insisted.

"It's a rare trait nowadays, my child," responded Charlie. "Steve is a good boy. He was in Rhode Island, and much of its soil adheres to him still, theoretically."

"What part of Rhode Island?" asked the girl, insistently.

Paxton was trying to remember where he had seen her before—not in that lizard-colored dress with a tulie scarf and sequined belt, but somewhere in the past.

"Four miles from Napa, and then you take the boat over to Farewell Bend. There used to be a little school there."

"I know it," sighed the girl, laughing, too. "New York is the funniest little place I ever lived in. You're always running into people you've known somewhere else. Do you remember me?"

"I do," answered Steve promptly. "I met you on the northwest corner of the rainbow back in the golden age."

"You did not," she retorted. "Here in New York I sign my stuff Sheila Gandy, but I'm Lily Peck."

"My dear," called Charlie, "forbear. You're doing this of your own free will."

"Oh, I don't care," Sheila answered. "It's the truth. Do you remember me now, Steve?" Steve promptly got down from his perch on the window seat and eliminated the rest of the party from his consciousness. They talked of home until Agatha laughingly said she had not dreamed that little "Rhody" could possibly have produced two such geniuses.

The next day Agatha had a long talk with the girl they called Sheila, telling her of Steve and of all that he seemed to miss in life.

"Charlie and I have been so interested in the boy. All he needs is encouragement. Someone to believe in him, don't you know?"

"No, I don't," replied Sheila, flatly. "I don't believe in propping and shoring up genius. My mother used to say up home to wait patiently after the eggs were hatched instead of trying to guess what they were beforehand. If he's a swan, so much the better; but if he's a turkey, he belongs in the barnyard."

They were riding on a Riverside bus together just two weeks later. When two are from the same town understanding and intimacy ripen marvelously in a short time. It was a wonderful day.

"Isn't it rather late for your potatoes?" asked Sheila, a little teasingly.

"They're in long ago. You know why I'm staying here. It's just on account of you—because I wanted to do big things for you. It isn't an easy thing to try to fill the measure a woman like you demands of a man. You know, Sheila."

"Oh, drop that, and call me Lily as you used to," she laughed. "They all do back home. How many acres are there at your place?"

"About ten, but they're all good, cleared land, you know."

She nodded.

"I have thirty-five—that old Hill farm of Uncle Abner's. He left it to me last year. Now, listen, Steve. We've known each other all our lives, in a way, but really only in these last two weeks. I like New York, and I've succeeded here, but after all it's the home acres that pull you back where you belong. You go home tomorrow. You can take my land and do what you please with it. I'll be up in harvest time, and if you've made good, I'll say yes. Are you willing to serve for Rachel? Just a summer span, instead of seven years."

A taxi passed them, its top thrown back. Agatha sat on the seat and waved her hand to them.

"I wonder if she guessed from my face," said Sheila. "I wanted to keep it a secret until we were sure you had made good. I wonder what I could tell her we were talking about."

Steve's hand closed over her's tightly. With his other he pulled his hat brim further down over his eyes and smiled with the air of a conqueror at the rippling Hudson river.

"Tell her just 'latera,'" he said. (Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

WHY

The Soldier Must Have An Emergency Ration

AMERICAN MEDICINE comments on the soldier's ration, and more particularly on the emergency ration of hardtack and sweet chocolate suggested by Doctor Vedler. It weighs only one pound, but gives the soldier the proper amount of food on which to carry on the work required of him. The writer says:

"The problem of rationing the soldier is of the utmost importance, not merely for the purpose of preserving his physical health, but of conserving his military effectiveness. Regardless of what the civil population subsists upon, the rationing of the soldier must not be reduced so as to curtail the food requirements."

"It oftentimes becomes necessary to send in advance scouting parties for whom adequate food supplies cannot be prepared to be carried by them. To meet such military exigencies an emergency ration is essential."

"As Vedler has pointed out in the Military Surgeon, an emergency ration must be balanced and possess a reasonable energy value and tissue-building power. Palatability must not be sacrificed. Its bulk must be minimal in order to prevent the ration from serving as a drag upon the soldier, already weighed down by his essential military appurtenances. The food must be of such a character that it will not readily deteriorate, while at the same time it must be cheap and readily purchasable."

"Vedler has suggested as an emergency ration ten ounces of hardtack and six ounces of sweet chocolate. The total weight of the ration is one pound, while it supplies approximately 2,100 calories, of which 150 calories arise from protein sources."

"A man resting in bed requires 1,800 calories per day to satisfy the normal heat and energy requirements of bodily function. According to Chittenden, on a low protein diet, 250 calories from protein are provided with a total of 2,574 calories for the 24 hours. The haversack ration as at present constituted supplies approximately 4,500 calories per day, with 490 calories arising from protein elements. This ration naturally provides the due and proper amount indicated for soldiers engaged in hard work."

"The emergency ration suggested is not liberal in character, and, in fact, materially reduces the total food required for the soldier, but this is merely for emergency purposes, and should not actually interfere to a great extent with the physical health of the consumer, provided that it is utilized merely in emergencies. It is patent that the bulk is not excessive, and that the foods suggested are cheap, generally available, palatable and resistant to deterioration."

BASKET-NET FOR FISHERMAN

How Angler Can Catch Minnows and Small Fish for Bait.

Perhaps the greatest difficulty that the amateur fisherman encounters on his expeditions is the securing of live bait. But if he has included in his equipment a basket net he can catch minnows and small fish in any stream.

The frame of the net is made from six tempered spring steel rods. To this the netting is attached with rust-proof ring clips. In the center of the netting is the bait pocket, in which bread, meat or other bait is placed to attract the minnows. When the net is lifted, the weight of the contents causes it to "bag," so that the minnows will not escape over the sides.

When the net snags or when, for some other reason, it is subjected to extraordinary strain, the six tempered steel rods bend inward and downward until all but one of the rings by which the net is attached to the frame slip out of the books. This collapsing of the frame frees the net from the snag and releases the strain. The inventor claims, however, that the net will not collapse except under extraordinary strain, which if resisted would damage the net. It folds up into a compact little bundle which is scarcely noticeable among the fisherman's "traps."

Why Girl Messengers Are Failures.

With one or two exceptions, girls who have tried lately to replace messenger boys in New York have failed. Too much walking, too many display windows and the inability to stand the gibes of messengers of the other sex, and dislike of a uniform are the stumbling blocks which have thinned the ranks. Because of a dearth of boys due to school starting and calls to "higher up" jobs, the telegraph companies advertised for girls. They wanted "girls over 16 for light work, steady employment." Many girls who didn't know what they were getting into answered. One office was able to persuade three to go to work, and another got five. After the first day there was one girl left in each office. Too much time lost looking into windows, the strain of walking all day and the taunts of boys working with them took the others. The employers of girl messengers are not discouraged, however, and believe by elimination they may finally get a good working force.

George Stumpf, proprietor of the Leader Store, has received his annual supply of gold fish, for which he is finding ready sale at reasonable prices. These fish come from a big aquarium in Ohio, and can only be shipped successfully during cool or cold weather. Even with favorable weather conditions and careful shipping many fish die in transit.

Mr. Stumpf has arranged a very pretty window display of the fish in bowls with a background of evergreens. The display is receiving much attention.

TURKEY ROOSTS HIGH

Turkey, the traditional fowl for Thanksgiving day dinner, will be seen on comparatively few tables in Rhinelander this year according to the statements made by local meat dealers. Turkeys were scarce a year ago, selling at 35 cents a pound and are said to be even fewer this fall. Prices will probably be in proportion. So far as is known chicken, ducks and geese are to be obtained in sufficient quantities and to many people accord an entirely satisfactory substitute for turkey. Fortunately Thanksgiving day is not a "meatless" day.

How Could It Be Otherwise.

The self-styled broadminded man declares that he accords to other men the same honesty of political convictions that he claims for himself. But deep down he doesn't do anything of the kind. He knows on the q. t. that any man who doesn't agree with him is a scoundrel.—Houston Post.

Best Root and Turnip Diet.

Best root and turnips are ancient articles of diet, and it is interesting to recall what the Roman satirist martial thought of them. Beet root, he tells us, was the worker's meal, and he condemns it as insipid, wine and pepper being needed accompaniments, but he highly appreciates turnips. These seem to him very aristocratic, for Romulus feasts on them in Heaven.

Tapestry Weaving Almost Lost Art.

Today the sole repository of the art of tapestry weaving is the workshop of the Gobelins, established by Louis XIV in 1662 with 250 workmen, who are now reduced to 60. Only a century ago there were a number of such repositories. The pope, the king of Spain, and the king of Bavaria maintained workshops in Rome, Madrid and Munich. William F. Paris tells us in "Decorative Elements in Architecture," that others existed in Turin and Naples. But more than a half century ago all of these went out of existence. Not until 1905 did the Gobelins court any publicity by giving an open exhibition of their work, a display then being made at the annual exposition of French artists in Paris. New York Evening Post.

CHICAGO MEN BUY LAND

C. Eby has sold 580 acres of wild lands to Chicago parties, in the towns of Cassian and Newbold. They intend to settle on the land in the spring soon as the weather will permit. This makes several tracts of fair size that Mr. Eby has sold to Chicago parties, who are very much pleased with their purchase. They claim there is no land in northern Wisconsin that holds out the opportunities that Oneida county land does.

Never Knew Value of Money.

"I am not to blame for my spendthrift habits," insists the Van Quentins. "They were taught to me by a too indulgent family. One winter I washed the dishes every night, for which they pressed pay upon me at the rate of a nickel a week. The following September I found myself the bewildered possessor of 50 cents for keeping the lawn mowed all summer."—Kansas City Star.

How to Learn to Do Everything Well.

When you make the most of everyday tasks it becomes second nature to do things well. That's what puts class to your work. You may imagine that because the job is common it won't make any difference whether it is done well or ill. That's how many fellows look upon plowing. They are satisfied if they can only turn the furrow. The fact is there is more monetary value in good plowing than most men think. To be sure it's just turning the earth, but the way you do it will have a lot to do with the size of the crops next year. An ordinary job carefully and neatly done shows the touch of a master and rises in dignity by comparison with common things.

How to Clean a Carpet.

Add two tablespoonfuls soda to a large pail of warm water. Wring out of this a large towel or other cloth. Spread this over a step at a time and beat with a small carpet or furniture beater. Change the cloth until all has been used. Then rinse in the water and proceed until each step is done. The damp cloth gathers every particle of dust and is much easier than taking up the carpet.

Cockroach Older Than Man.

The despised and malodorous cockroach is one of the most remarkable of living things. It has existed in its present form ever since the Archæozoic age, billions of years ago. During that time whole faunas have lived and died. Man is a newcomer on the face of the earth compared to the cockroach. This shows that this insect is a type splendidly fitted to survive, as, in fact, are most insects. They are the only form of life which man has not conquered and are for that reason his most dangerous enemies in the animal world.

Sirens Ancient and Modern.

According to ancient Greek legends of mythology, the sirens were a sort of sea nymphs, beautiful creatures with musical voices, who frequented a certain locality in the Mediterranean sea, and by melodious song turned the heads of mariners and lured them to their destruction. Hence, by a figure of speech, the term has come to be applied to bewitching females who charm men by their musical voices and fascinating ways.

Willie's Qualification.

Patricia had been to a children's party. Returning home she told her mother that she preferred to play with Willie Smith. "Why?" her mother asked. "Because he's so exclusive," she said, having heard her mother speak of exclusive people.

Sheep's Tail Weighs 20 Pounds.

The best variety of Syrian sheep has a broad, flat tail which, after the animal is fattened, attains a weight of 20 or more pounds. When skinned and boned, the fat which composes nearly all of the tail is cut into small pieces and cooked down slowly, like our own lard. When it is all melted, the choicest portions of the animal are cut into small pieces and cooked until done in the fat; seasoning is added, and the mixture is turned into jars, where it becomes a solid mass when cold.

Realization Painful.

It is best for the old guy to dream of the cool, clear swimming hole of way back yonder, for it will seem to be as big and cool and clear as of yore. If you visit it after an absence of forty years you will be pained to see what a hot little puddle it is.

The Furlong.

The measure of length known as the furlong represents one-eighth of a mile. Originally it was the length of the ancient acre in England which had a definite form, being 40 rods in length and 4 rods in breadth. On the old English open or common field system, each furrow plowed equally in length the acre, and the distance was called furlong, that is, furrow-long, or 40 rods, or 660 feet, equal to 220 yards or one-eighth of a mile.

Fur Trade Our Oldest Industry.

The oldest industry in New York is the fur trade. As early as 1615 a Dutch syndicate colonized Manhattan island with a few families who devoted their time to procuring for shipment to Holland the furs they received in trade with the Indians.

INFANT SON DIES

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pecor died Sunday after an illness with pneumonia. He was three months of age.

BEGINNING OVER

By ANDREW PHELPS.

That was surely a love match between Ned Richards and Dorothy White. Ned was a bookkeeper and twenty years old, and Dorothy was twenty-two and "just a girl" living at home. Once a year Ned had a vacation, but he generally spent it at the seashore. What he didn't know about the country and agriculture would have filled a big book. What he knew about bookkeeping would have filled another.

As for Miss Dorothy, she knew that hay came from grass, and that milk came from cows, but those facts had never interested her much and she had never gone beyond them.

They loved. It doesn't make any difference whether they fell in love at first sight, or waited for three months, and when Miss Dorothy had promised to be Ned's wife, they talked. Engaged couples generally talk, but very few of them talk as Ned and Dorothy did. There should be a lawn in front of the cottage. There should be room for a big garden behind it. They should keep hens; they should keep at least two pigs; they should raise their own vegetables, and you know what else is needed to complete the happy plans.

By and by, Ned and Dorothy were married and after a brief wedding tour, they returned home to look for the cottage. They found it. It was just the cottage they had pictured a thousand times over. They had repairs made and moved in.

That lawn! It was a lawn, or their landlord said it was, but the grass was a foot high and was matted together like a fish net. It must be mowed, however, and it was in this mowing that the first shadow fell.

Ned knew how to buy a lawnmower and to ride home proudly in the wagon with it, but he did not know how the thing worked. He was dragging it after him instead of pushing it in front, when Dorothy came to the door and laughed, to his humiliation.

They were to keep chickens. Ned got a half day off and went to see a farmer to buy some fowls. A carpenter came with lumber and nails and made a chicken house.

They had planned to keep pigs, and Ned bought a couple. The carpenter came again and a pen was built, and the grunts of the pigs sounded homelike.

It was in July and far past planting time, but Ned arose with daylight and planted corn and potatoes and the seeds of many vegetables. He limped around with a lame back as a consequence, but he looked forward to a bountiful harvest. Half a dozen doves came and sat on the roof tree, and cooed, and all would have been happiness had either of the couple known as much about agriculture as they did about moving pictures. Everything the wife undertook brought a protest from her husband, and vice versa. When the hens were brought home there was no food and water for them, and they began to die off. It was only when a neighbor told them that fowls must be fed and watered that they gave them care.

"You ought to have known better," reproachfully said the wife.

"So had you," was the reply.

And when the pigs had been three days without care and were giving vent to their disgust at such carelessness the bride suddenly remembered that pigs wanted care the same as fowls, and she hurried to heat some water and to carry out some fish bones. When Ned was told of this incident he replied that anybody would have known better.

The potatoes did not sprout and the corn showed never a stalk, and each said the other ought to have known better than to plant two months too late. A few cucumber seeds sprouted and a few vines wandered over the ground, but they died from despair after a few weeks. Never an egg did the hens lay; never an ounce of fat did those pigs take on.

One day Miss Dorothy went home to her mother, and she cried and told her all about it. One day Ned went to see his father, and he looked very solemn as he told his story. Dorothy told her mother that she and Ned must separate. Ned told his father that he could not stand this thing longer. The result was that Dorothy's mother and Ned's father made a visit to the woodbine cottage that evening.

"There will be no separation," said Ned's father, when all particulars had been related. "Even an idiot can fall in love, but you have got to have common sense to retain that love."

"But, Ned says I never do anything right!" protested Dorothy.

"And she says the same thing about me!" retorted Ned.

"You had the good sense to marry each other, but you didn't have the sense to make a farm of this place," said the father. "You let the failure irritate you, and your irritation caused you to blame each other. Stop it right here! Ned, you love your wife dearly, don't you?"

"Yes."

"And you Dorothy, love Ned?"

"Yes."

"Then kiss each other and begin all over, and you will come out all right. When you don't know a thing, ask some one who does."

Our City Hall Flag Pole Poem Contest

Came to an end November 1. Several poems were submitted and the judges, Mayor Grant V. Clark, E. O. Barstow and T. C. Wood, found it no easy matter to select the winner. However, it was decided to give two prizes, which were won by the Trumble Twins of this city and Owen Charrey of Minneapolis. The poems follow:

THE CITY HALL FLAG POLE (By Trumble Twins)

One bright and sunny day,
As the council were at play,
Trying to decide a way,
In which to get this flag pole gay,
Up to the sky and far away,
A little man who worked for pay,
Stood up and said, "I'll have my say
About this flag pole that's so gay.
My charges will be eighty dollars,
If you'll let me have this prey."
Then up popped another man, said
he,
"I'll raise it for nothing, so you see."
But there it lies on the cold, cold
ground,
And now the snow lies all around.
The Liberty Bonds are now in sway
And the City Hall Flag Pole is there to stay.

STICK IT IN THE HOLE (By Owen J. Charrey)

They've dug a hole and bought a pole
Words—naught but empty sound
The pole lies prone on mother earth
The hole is in the ground.
The hole was dug for the flag pole
The pole was bought for a flag;
But what's the use, pray what excuse
Do the city fathers brag?
The city is patriotic enough,
It'll stand the cost, I'll say,
So friends, "Don't put off 'till tomorrow
What you can easily do today.
Don't wait 'till the war is over
And the boys from the front come home,
But stick the pole in the open hole.
Can't you do that much alone?

Now then, we hope that the next move will be to raise the pole. Let everybody boost toward this end. And don't forget that there will be a

K. B. Maxwell, Manager

THE THIEF

By PAUL J. FAY.

"Here are the letters ready for your signature, Mr. Whitman."

Miss Edwards laid the neat pile of letters on his desk.

"All right, you may go now," he replied curtly.

Roland Whitman rapidly signed the letters and then arose and yawned. Contentment beamed from every feature. Mr. Whitman was successful and knew it. Moreover, at forty, he looked younger than most men at thirty.

The door opened and a handsome young man of about seventeen entered.

"Hello, dad," he greeted. "Can you let me have twenty-five dollars? Some of the fellows in our class are going to have a theater party tonight."

"Richard"—a slight frown was on his father's face—"how do you manage to spend so much money lately? Your allowance is plentiful for all your pleasures and you must make it do."

Mr. Whitman, since the death of the boy's mother fifteen years before, had been too indulgent to him. But recently he had begun to think that the unlimited amount of money was working him harm.

"All right, father," Richard smiled rather ruefully. "If I can't have it, I suppose I can't. I'll try to make the money I have do me. Are you going home now?"

"Yes, I guess I will."

A little over an hour later, Mr. Whitman answered the phone and heard his bookkeeper excitedly ask him to come to the office.

When he reached there he found the man with nerves unstrung.

"The safe," he gasped. "It has been robbed. When I went to put away my books tonight I found the cashbox open and empty. Was there much in it?"

"About $4,000. Whether I get the money back or not the person who stole it will go to prison."

In half an hour a detective was in the office.

"Who knows the combination of the safe?" he asked.

The owner replied: "Mr. Holmes, my bookkeeper; Miss Edwards, my stenographer, and myself."

"Well, then," said the sleuth, "it must be one of the three who took the money, as the safe was not opened by force. Of course you would not rob yourself. Do you suspect Mr. Holmes?"

"I do not. He has been in this business as long as I. I would trust him as firmly as I would my own son."

"Well, then," the detective continued, "do you suspect Miss Edwards?"

Mr. Whitman thought a minute.

"Yes I do. This afternoon Mr. Holmes and I left the office. Miss Edwards was alone. When we came back her face was very red and she seemed nervous. During the rest of the day she would jump at the least noise. Didn't you notice it?" he asked the bookkeeper.

"Yes, I did," the old man agreed.

The detective thanked them and withdrew.

In a remarkably short time the case of the People vs. Catherine Edwards was brought to court. The prosecuting attorney was a friend of Mr. Whitman. The girl would say nothing. She was convicted on circumstantial evidence and sentenced to prison.

As time passed, Mr. Whitman became more and more irritable. His contented look disappeared. His business began to suffer.

One night, he was sitting in his room smoking, when suddenly he dropped his cigar and sprang to his feet. For through the smoke he saw the bars of a prison and back of them the wan face of Catherine Edwards.

"I wonder—I wonder—No, she stole from me. But did she?"

For the first time a doubt came into his mind of Catherine's guilt. A long time he stood thus, thinking—just thinking.

At five o'clock Mr. Whitman was on the train speeding back to town. At eight o'clock he was at the home of the prosecuting attorney. And at three o'clock that afternoon the two men were in the executive mansion at the state capital.

As a result, a few days later, Catherine Edwards stood outside the prison, pardoned by the governor.

Mr. Whitman met her in his car and took her to his home. Although she objected, he led her in the house, into the drawing room.

"Catherine," he said in a low voice that broke at times. "I have done you the greatest injustice a man can do another. I have had you arrested for a crime you did not commit. I do not know who did it. I do not care. But will you forgive me? I want you to become my wife."

Mr. Whitman started and Catherine's face reddened as the door opened and Richard came slowly toward them.

"Father," he said, "I must tell you. I know Miss Edwards won't. I—I stole that money. I never thought she'd be suspected and when she was, I was—well, too cowardly to confess."

"Why didn't you tell when you were arrested?" Mr. Whitman asked the girl.

"Because," she answered quietly, "he was your son, Roland, and—and I loved you."

Domestic science experts testify that approximately 20 per cent of the money the average family expends for food is wasted through improper selection and marketing and poor cooking.

CITY AND COUNTY STRONG FOR LOAN

Maximum Amount Asked For
Is Oversubscribed By $30,000

Oneida County's investment in the Second Liberty Loan totals $322,450. As usual our county is in the distinguished class. Its minimum allotment, or allotted portion, of the Three Billion Dollar issue was $200,000.00, portion of the maximum of Five Billion Dollars asked for by the Secretary of the Treasury was $334,000.00 and it over subscribed that amount by $30,000.00. In other words if every locality in the United States has invested proportionately, the total subscriptions are about five and one-half billions.

Of this amount, naturally the city of Rhinelander furnished a large percentage. The efficient work of E. A. Forbes, A. E. Weesner and F. A. Marshall and their able corps of assistants accomplished wonders. Mr. Marshall wishes to thank publicly Messrs. C. F. Smith, A. J. O'Melia, E. C. Swenson and others too numerous to mention who helped him out. On account of Mr. Marshall's illness, Mr. F. D. Hoover has credit for the management and is entitled to a share of the glory.

While the rivalry was warmest among the three bunches of canvassers, Mr. Weesner managed to keep the others on the anxious seat by his air of confidence and appearance of having something "up his sleeve." As he usually carried around with him a good large subscription card to show on proper occasions his bluff looked real. Don't get the impression however that Mr. Weesner's work was all bluff. He was on the job all of the time. He did not have the best field to work in but his crop showed careful preparation and care of the ground. He says his helpers all worked so faithfully to make his bluff good that it would not be right to name one of the busiest and best. Mr. Forbes carried off the palm. We all know that success with him is a habit and he had a copious help that could not be beaten. When his pulling was supplemented by the push of such men as C. P. Crosby, H. C. Hanke and W. A. Brown, besides a half a dozen others who ought to be mentioned, things had to move.

Mr. J. O. Moen took a leading part in the general planning, and also in the execution of the big undertaking and to his effort the magnificent results were largely due. Many not mentioned above worked hard and persistently and have the satisfaction of knowing contribution was worth mention. But the line drawn somewhere. The he stated here that the s ures we are able to quote county are due also to the purchases by the banks, and firms that were in like large amounts.

Resume of the Most Important Events in Sweden, Norway and Denmark—Of Interest to the Scandinavians in America.

DENMARK.

A story comes from London to the effect that the Germans have been trying to incite themselves with the Danes by offering to cede to Denmark a small strip of land in Slesvig which formerly belonged to Denmark. In return the Germans were to receive a "large sum of money" and certain economical and commercial concessions. The Hovedstadstidningen says that the sum of money involved is what Denmark got from the United States for the Virgin Islands (formerly Danish West Indies). Said paper denounces in strong terms the German proposition and says that Germany not only expects to get money from Denmark but also aims at making the country economically and politically subject to Germany. The strip of land in question is Haderbøv.

By the death of Anne Marie Jensdatter the parish of Jersmark has lost its oldest inhabitant. She was born August 6, 1819. Until two years ago she used to work in the harvest field.

Mrs. Tang Valour, the proprietress of the Nore Væstergaard, has donated to the university library a copy of the Danish rymd-chronicles printed in 1731. As far as known there is only one more copy of this edition in existence and that belongs to the royal library.

A vigorous demand has been made in the Danish Riksdag for the punishment of the great swarm of emigrant spies that are flooding the country. It is claimed that although more Danish seamen have been killed on account of the submarine war than the Danish army lost in great battles, the spies that have been caught have too often simply been sent out of the country instead of being punished.

An interesting archeological find has been made in Lestrup creek. One of the objects is a stone hammer five inches long. There is also another tool, the exact use of which is in doubt. It is six inches long and has a hole in the middle, like the hammer.

The value of the dollar is continually falling in Denmark, the American dollar being worth less than 83 cents. The German mark is 53 per cent below par, the lowest since the beginning of the war.

A new children's home has just been dedicated at Vilund. There is room for 20 children. The cost of the institution is $9,000.

SWEDEN.

A captain in the Swedish navy, O. Dahlbeck, has asked permission of the Swedish government to open airplane traffic between Sweden and Finland, from a port on the Swedish eastern coast between the Swedish towns of Norrtälje and Öregrund, in connection with the railway there. By the suggested plan, the journey from Stockholm to Petrograd would be made three days shorter than at present. Captain Dahlbeck holds that airplane traffic between Sweden and Finland is of special importance, because the shortage of coal in Sweden makes it impossible to maintain the ordinary railway traffic. The suggestion of Captain Dahlbeck has been sent to the commander in chief of the Swedish general staff. If his application is granted, the new traffic route will be the first of its kind in the world.

A quick and abnormal rise in the price of Swedish kroner to 41½ cents, a premium of 55 per cent in the New York market, occurred a few days ago. In the opinion of metropolitan bankers this advance may indicate that Sweden is preparing to enter the war on the side of the central powers. It is believed in financial circles that word has been quietly passed to Swedish bankers and that they are withdrawing their bank balances from the United States to prevent sequestration in case of a break with this country. Just before the United States severed relations with Germany, the rapid transfer of German funds to Berlin caused a similar rise in marks.

A royal ordinance requires the inventory of the entire stock of footwear of skin and leather December 15.

The liquor control department is going to make an investigation at the offices of ten of the liquor firms of the country for the purpose of being able to answer this important question: What class consumes most liquor? The inquiry is to comprise 150,000 men holding account books, the only means by which they can buy liquor. In the capital alone 8,000 cases will be considered. The department believes that the inquiry will be a great help in the work for sobriety. The government has been asked to introduce whisky cards.

The Swedish opera singer, Emil Stibel has a great deal of trouble to get rid of his superfluous adipose tissue. Last year he underwent what his friends called a horse cure to become a trifle slimmer. He worked as a fireman on a railway train during the hottest season. This reduced the bulk of the energetic singer very materially. But last spring his fat bothered him as much as ever. Then he took to farming. His work was to wheel peat all day on a farm in Varmland and his boss gave him credit for being a diligent laborer. At the close of the season Stibel had worked off many pounds of his besetting nuisance.

A few days ago the British legation in Washington decided to deliver, without search, to the Swedish legation in Washington the mail bags which were taken by the British authorities at Halifax several weeks ago. The Swedish government consistently maintained that they contained nothing but statistics regarding exports and imports in a statement which the United States asked for in connection with the establishment of rules governing exports to northern Europe.

A joint Scandinavian protest, it is expected, will be lodged against the German sinking of the neutral steamers under convoy in the North sea last Wednesday, according to a dispatch to the Morning Post from Stockholm. A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Stockholm says that the Swedish press, even the pro-German section, speaks very sharply against Germany. The Dagens Nyheter declares that it was not a naval or military operation, but mere piracy.

The Trans-Atlantic company of Stockholm has closed a contract with Lindholmens Varfstad for four steamers to be delivered in 1921. The aggregate tonnage is 15,000. This will make 42,000 tons that this shipyard has under construction for the Trans-Atlantic company.

FINLAND.

Preparations are being made in Helsinki for the evacuation of that city, according to a telegram received at Petrograd. A report from Stockholm to the Novoe Vremya says that in view of the easy advance in Russian territory the Germans are preparing for a descent on Finland and profiting by their propaganda expect to be able with small forces to capture the Russian troops without resistance and to cut the railway at Tornio, severing communication between Russia and Sweden. Helsinki is a naval depot of Finland. It is guarded by the fortress of Sveaborg, classified as a fortification of the first class. The city is an important link in the railway from Petrograd.

NORWAY.

According to the report of the department of commerce the merchant marine of Norway consisted of 3,237 vessels of 2,171,230 tons at the close of July. During the month of August 37 new ships were added and 21 dropped out. But as the tonnage of the former was only 19,764 and that of the latter 42,540, there was a net loss of 22,776 tons, although the number of ships was increased by 13. The loss of 21 ships of 41,205 tons was due to the war. Of the 37 ships acquired in August only one, a fishing steamer of 133 tons, was built new in Norway besides 25 small motor boats. Only four small motor vessels were bought abroad, while ships of 13,329 tons were built at foreign shipyards to orders from Norwegian business men.

The so-called alcohol commission is evidently bent on doing thorough work. A course of lectures was opened for the benefit of the commission at the university September 9. On this occasion Premier Gunnar Knudsen said: "Norway stands very high with regard to sobriety. Next to Finland it is number one. In Germany, France and other wine-producing countries people drink from ten to twenty times as much as our people do. It may safely be said that, upon the whole, the Norwegian people may be considered to be very sober, but there still remains something to be done before the temperance people have reached their goal: to create a thoroughly sober Norwegian people."

Lars Sylfester of Tafford is ninety-seven years old. In spite of his old age he is still working on the farm. Last summer he cut and raked hay, sometimes spending the whole day in the hay field with the other men. He can read without glasses and his hearing is almost normal. In all his life he has spent only two days in bed on account of sickness.

Ryholm palace in Sweden has been bought by Ship Owner Aaby of Christiania. The Tosslanda manor, one of the largest landed estates in Västergötland, has also been acquired by a Norwegian, Gustav Gustavsson of Trondheim.

Adolf Henrik Lindström, the tested and popular cook of Nansen, Sverdrup and Amundsen on their polar expeditions, has been compelled to give up his plan to serve as cook on Captain Amundsen's next polar expedition. Lindström has been sick since last spring.

A spy scare followed by an exciting spy hunt in the country around Elverum resulted in the ransoming up of an innocent Swede who had recently been discharged from an insane asylum.

HOLD REUNION AT GILLIGAN HOME

There was a merry gathering at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gilligan, 221 S. Pelham street, Sunday. The day marked the fifty-second anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Gilligan, the thirty-second anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crofoot and the fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. John Gilligan. The three families, together with Will Gilligan and family, and Mrs. K. M. Biscoff of Ashland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gilligan, celebrated the occasion with a turkey dinner and supper. It was a very pleasant reunion and one which those present will long remember. Congratulations from relatives and friends were in order during the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilligan celebrated their golden wedding two years ago. They are in excellent health and look forward to many more anniversaries. They are numbered among this city's oldest and highly esteemed residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Crofoot were married Nov. 4 1885, and Mr. and Mrs. Gilligan attended their wedding. However, Charley admits that he and his wife failed to attend the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Gilligan. Mr. and Mrs. John Gilligan are as happy and contented as any young couple could wish to be and the New North hopes that they, too, will some day observe their fifty-second anniversary.

WILL ADDRESS WOMEN

"TEDDY" SHOULD HAVE SEEN THEM

Had "T. R." been in Rhinelander Tuesday his heart would have filled with admiration at the sight of the Ahlborn family, of Minocqua, who paid this city a friendly call. The family numbered twenty-four people, including the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ahlborn, their sons, daughters and grandchildren.

This is one of the largest families ever seen in Rhinelander at one time and they attracted much attention. When the Ahlborns alighted from the train, at the Northwestern station, a bystander enquired if they constituted a state convention or just a private party.

CONSTABLE FORBES, BY GOSHI

Ed. Forbes made a very dignified village constable the other day when he piloted to the "hoosegow" a sea sick mariner, whose overload of prune juice made it impossible for him to reach port. It is understood that Ed. has left an order with the tinner for a star.

Joe Cheslock, "the millionaire kid," has sent in his application for membership in the American aviation corps. Joe says he doesn't mind going to war but he hates to leave the girls.
